Intelligence reached the city yesterday afternoon of a murder which had been amitted in Stewart county, which was five teet eight or nine inches high, fair complexion and light hair. If any mons-ing absent he put his little children to bed and had concluded to go over to his brother-in-law's, Mr. Doc Alford's, for a short while, and having lost the front door key, fastened it on the inside and attempted to get out of a window by means of a short ladder, which slipped and he fell to the ground, breaking his nose and neck. He died instantly. The children heard the fall, but did not know that their father was lying dead under the window. Mr. Alford, who lives only a short distance from Mr. Millen's, came over in about five from Mr. Millen's, came over in about five minutes after the fall, and it was he who first discovered the corpse. A gentleman in this city assures us of the truth of the following: A gentleman who lives in Meriwether county found a nest of young rats and took them to his house for the purpose of feeding the cat. He gave them to the cat, and instead of her killing them as he expected, she seemed very fond of the little rats, and carried them to her bed, where she suckled them just as she did bed, where she suckled them just as she did her kittens. The gentleman from whom we got the information did not know whether the cat raised them for eating purposes or not as he "left them about that time."

A TRIP TO THE COUNTRY.

A Picnic at New Holland and Excursion to Toccoa.

The picnic and excursion which leaves this city at 70-clock on Wednesday morning next, on the Air-Line road, will be a memorable affair. Being the first of the season, and probably the only one of the season that will be able to offer such cheep rates—only one dollar for the round trip—of course an immense crowd will be with it.

Leaving the depot at 7 a. m., the train will arrive at New Holland springs at 9:30 a. m., where the picnic will be held. The band will also remain at this place, and furnish music for the dancers. The train will then proceed to Toccoa falls, conveying all who desire to witness the scenic wonders of that place.

Every arrangement has been made to render the occasion pleasant. No liquors will be allowed, either on the train or on the grounds. Numerous games will be prohe grounds. Numerous games will be pro-ided. Remember that it is only one dollar for the round trip—on Wednesday, the 28th of April.

The Georgia raifrond will no doubt divide about one million of dollars in bonds, or certificates, free, to their stockholders in May, at the convention, for money that has been spent on improvements, and on purchases and extensions. committed in Stewart county, which was one of the most unprovoked and atrocious in the annals of the county. The deed, from all accounts, was as cold-blooded as any ever chronicled, and the good people of Stewart are very much exasperated over the affair. The circumstances are about as follows: Bill Sasser, a white man, had bought of Ned Beecher, colored, a pitchfork, which Sasser failed to pay for. Ned sent to Sasser's house and had the pitchfork sent to Sasser's house and had the pitchfork was. Ned replied that as he had not paid for it, he could not get it. In an instant Sasser drew a pistol, saying "I will show you who you are talking to," and fired, killing the negro at the first fire. This did not satisfy his brutal nature, and he continued firing into the body after it had fallen off the wagon on the ground. Sasser fled immediately, and has not been seen since. He is described as a low good-fornothing white man, who did not even associate with the better class of negrees. He is five teet eight or nine inches high, fair complexion and light hair. That Causes a Breeze in the Senate Washington, April 23,-A rencontre oc chired on the floor of the senate this after carred on the floor of the senate this afternoon between Senator Ben Hill and Mr.

Mr. Hill had, through his attorney, attempted to compromise the Raymond suit

Saceldo replied by calling the senator a coward and inviting him to accompany him outside the chamber, which the senahim outside the chamber, which the sena-tor very properly refused to do, and, turn-ing, regained his sent. The Star, this eve-ning, publishes an authorized denial of the statement by Sateldo to his paper, that Mr. Hill was seeking a compromise with the Raymond woman. Mr. Hill denounces Sateldo's statement as a infamous lie, and a particle of evidence, beyond the state-

self the champion perjurer, that she started for Atlanta with him two hours before day on Monday morning. On the contrary the probabilities are directly against this, Miss Norris had not once intimated to her two girl friends whom she talked with on Sunday any intention of going to Atlanta the next day; nor had she spoken of such a purpose to young Seaborn Weaver, to whom she was engaged to be married, though he accompanied her home from church and remained talking with her till late that last afternoon of her life. Mrs. Jolly has repeatedly asserted that Victoria told her nothing on Sunday night of any intention she had to go away next morning. Mrs. Jolly declares also that she not only did not know that her husband and Victoria were going to Atlanta, but that she knew nothing about when they went, and was never more surprised in her life than when Mr. Jolly told her Victoria had gone. It was very strange, she told the neighbors, that she did not wake up while Victoria and Mr. Jolly were stirring about—cooking and eating breakfast and getting ready for departure, two or three hours before day. One must certainly agree with her that it is strange, particularly agree with her that it is strange, particularly agree with her that it is strange, particularly when it is remembered that the house is a mere shell, whose three rooms are simply divided, one from another, by very thin partitions of boards full of crevices and that Victoria's little sleeping chamber opened into that of Mrs. Jolly, through which she must pass in order to reach the little shed room where it is claimed that the Sunday night breakfast was cooked and eaten. Mrs. Jolly's slumbers must have been as sound as the "Seven Sleepers" not to have been disturbed by the walking, striking a light, making a fire, the clatter of pots and dishes within a few feet of her head, and the bustle of departure. Yet she declares she did not wake until her usual hour (daylight) when she opened her eyes and saw her hushand standing before ner and heard him not wake until her usual hour (daylight) when she opened her eyes and saw her husband standing before her and heard him say, to her amazement, "Victoria is gone." She told her neighbors that she "kind of roused up once," and that she seemed to hear Victoria calling Mr. Jolly. He told her next norming that what she heard, was

As I have no idea there was any breakfast cooked by poor Victoria that fatal night, I think the call Mrs. Joily seemed to hear in her half awake state, was the cry of the girl in supplication or in her death-agony. For it is probable that she was killed that Sunday might before the setting! is probable that sne was trifled that Sunday night before she retired. The strips of dress, the shoes and little ornaments, that clung to her skeleton body when it was disenterred, were the same she had worn Sunday evening. Enough epublicans seems to have got together in Georgia yesterday to have a quarrel, but it is so long since they have had a state convention d with he re that nobod will feel dispose of to blame them for having as good a time as possible. The Grant men and the Blaine men appear to have been in such equal strength as to be able to mix the proceedings considerably, and it was a difficult matter half the time to tell which were on the top. The Blaine people, however, have apparently secured the organization of the convention, and are not paying any unnecessary attention to charges of fraud preferred by the other side. The convention will fluish its work to-day, when it will be determined who gets the actual truits of the convention. ago, but now they congratulate themselves at the overthrow of the institution. God be thanked that north and south at last we have one sentiment on that subject, and those northern politicians who keep the subject of American siavery rolling on and rolling on are doing a thing as useless and inapt as it would be to make the Dorr rebellion of Rhode Island, or Aaron Burr's attempt at the overthrow of the United States government a test for our fall elections. The whole subject of American slavery is dead and damhed. I said to the planters: "How do these men work now under the new system?" and they replied: "They work well; we have no trouble; there was a good deal of trouble just after the war closed, and a demoralization and disorganization consequent upon a change of things, but now they work most admirably, and they work far better than the northern men who come here, because the climate seems better adapted to the colored people, who will on a summer day, at their noohing, go out and lie down to erjoy the sun." My friends, all this talk about the dragging of the rivers and the lakes of the south to haul ashore negroes murdered and flung in, while it may be believed by many at the north. is a falsehood so absurd it is hardly fit to mention in a religious assemblage. The white people of the south feel their dependence on the dark people for the culture of their lands; the dark people feel their dependence on the white people for the payment of their wages. From what I have seen of the oppression of female clerks in some of the dry goods stores of the north, and from what I have seen of the oppression of some young men at the north on small salaries, which they must take or get nothing at all, if have come to the conclusion that there are more consideration and sympathy for some of the employers in some of the dry goods stores on Fulton avenue, Brooklyn; Broadway, New York; Washington street, Boston; Chestinut street, Philadelphia. In all the land and in all the earth there are tyrannical employers, and their ma

John Keely, Whose name is legion," calls attention another column to a special offering for his week in the shape of "bargains." Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, No-My stock is very complete, and by far the largest that I have ever offered. Every available space in my house is filled to its utmost capacity, and in order that you may conceive an idea as to the immensity of my stock, I will give the dimensions of my store: It is fifty-five feet wide by two hundred and forty-five feet deep. No dry goods house south, not excepting Baltimore, compares with it in size.

I claim to carry the largest stock in my line south. My stock of dress goods is immense, including everything in the new combinations, Persian effects, brocade, satin and satins. A great variety of black, col-this week in the shape of "bargains." Surely Captain Keely is hard to beat as a caterer to the taste of the public. His store, is literally thronged with customers from early morning until dark, and the verdict seems to be that "Kte'y's is the place." Now, why is this? It is because his prices are the lowest, his assortment the greatest, and his system of business the most agreeable. He is not polite to customers because he has been compelled by competition to be so, it is his nature, and was his original practice to be so, and nowhere can a customer so readily obtain redress in case a piece of goods fails to please those at home—as at Keely's. Our Popular Store "The Bazar."

Our Popular Ntore—"The Bazar."
This popular milinery and fancy goods establishment is now one of the features of Atlanta. Mr. Wurzburg, the proprietor, came into our midst about one year ago with the determination of giving the ladies of Atlanta the opportunity of buying their millinery at New York prices. The result of his year's experience has been very encouraging to him, and shows that our ladies know how to appreciate the efforts of an energetic merchant determined to sell the best goods for the least money.

On examining his stock of trimmed hats, which gave us much pleasure, we find that he has an exceedingly large and fine stock of trimmed hats at prices so very low that it really astonished us.

Then we were shown into the department where hats are trimmed to order, and as we stood there looking at the half dozen pretty milliners turning crude shapes into really beautiful hats, placing an elegant ostrich feather here, a brillitant ornament there, we could not help seeing that a becoming hat has a great tendency to beautify woman. feather here, a brilliant ornament there, we could not help seeing that a becoming hat has a great tendency to beautify woman.

Mrs. Wurzburg, who superintends the millinery herself, kindly showed us the latest styles in pattern hats and bonnets, trimmed with exquisite taste, and pointed out to us lovely ostrich plumes and rich laces.

Mrs. Wurzburg has a great experience in artistic millinery, as ahe has had one of the most fashionable establishments in New York for many years, and the quantity of French fashion plates and books which are piled in her room show that she is an ardent admirer of taste and beauty. We warmly piled in her room show that she is an ardent admirer of taste and beauty. We warmly recommend our lady friends to go to the "Bezar," and if they are not suited in hats, millinery, laces, fancy goods, picture frames, etc., it certainly is not the fault of the assortment. We predict an excellent season for Mr. Wurzburg, as his fine goods and low prices cannot fail to secure for him the best trade of Atlanta. MAYOR'S OFFICE, ATLANTA, GA, April 24

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: I see our old friend Jim Edwards (James R. Edwards) is a candidate for tax-collector. I know the man—he is bonest. I have known him a long time as passenger conductor on the State road and on the Georgia Central. He has never had any of the public pap. He has worked hard for his property, and he owns it himself. He can give as good a bond as any man in Fulton county. If he is elected we will have to pay our taxes, but the money will go into the treasury.
